Thirteen Merrymakers Are Killed By Train

DISCONSY PASSENGER HITS A CROWDED HASSBACK AND OTHERS WERE KILLED

At 10 a.m. Sept. 24—Sixteen persons probably will result from a 15-minute passenger train crash into a party of thirty-one merry young people loaded upon a hayrack this afternoon.

A big Bill board obscured from view the locomotive as well as from the wagon that had for did the identity.

Twelve persons on the hayrack were instantly killed, one has since died and three out of eight others injured are believed to be fatally hurt. Nine of the thirty-one persons in the wagon escaped without a scratch and an old bull horse No. 10 on the train suffered.

The collision occurred at 3:40 p.m. on the Chicago and Northwestern at a crossing here. The victims were returning from trip to the country, where they had celebrated the anniversary of their wedding. All but two, who Chicago men were residents of Armless legs and headless bodies covered the right-of-way as the train of nine coaches was brought to a stop 500 feet from the scene of the dash.

Several of the bodies were so badly mangled that identification was possible only by fragments of clothing.

Bodies on Engine Pile Six of the victims all dead were discovered on the engine pile, where they lay until removed by the train crew and passengers. Two others were buried through a flagstaff a shanty with such force as to overturn the little structure. One of these Miss Minn. was still alive when picked up. She died a few hours later.

Another of the victims killed was thrown high over a burn fifty feet from the railway right-of-way.

Among the occupants of the hayrack who escaped were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brzinski and their child of four years. They were seated in the front half of the jack-the-mother saddle a child in her lap. About an hour back in the wagon sat Miss Wardell. The latter was hurled about fifty feet and rendered unconscious. When found by rescuers her child was in her arms having escaped unscathed. The pants of the child were slightly injured.

Holds It Reins Peter Hansen driver managed to bring the train and was the only person aboard who was not temporarily stunned. He declares he made every effort to look in both directions along the track but did not notice the onrushing train until his arm was on the track. He whipped in the horses but could manage to get the wagon only half way across. Practically every person on the wagon was an employee of the Men's Wear Store Company and the

KINNELL MAKES MORE FUN IN CROWDED HASSBACK AND OTHERS WERE KILLED

Niles, Mich., Sept. 24.—Failure to recognize persons he is supposed to have known years ago after he had affectionately greeted an old white mare which he used to drive when on farm at Barren Springs, Mich., today left that village as hopelessly divided as Niles over the genuineness of George A. Kinnell's claim to identify.

The man of mystery returned home today from his trip into the country where it was thought he might further strengthen his position. At a farm where Kinnell spent many years the claimant visited the old horse.

Nancy Nancy, my good old Nancy, he exclaimed as he put his arms around the animal's neck. Kinnel's acquaintances of bygone days crowded around the man but when most of them were not recognized or recalled to memory the effect of the recognition of the horse was largely nullified among the villagers.

GATES' WEDDING, WEDNESDAY

Minneapolis Sept. 24—Charles Gates son and heir of John W. Gates who died recently in Paris and Miss Florence Hopwood daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Hopwood of Minneapolis will be married Wednesday in Union o.

Miss Hopwood's uncle, Robert J. Hopwood.

Miss Hopwood her parents and a small party of friends tonight are en route to Pennsylvania.

The announcement that the wedding would take place in Uniontown came as a surprise as it had been announced Miss Hopwood was to be married at her home here.

Advice from Post Arthur Tex state that Mr. Gates had made arrangements to be there in two weeks then making a European trip impossible.

For the wedding, Mr. Gates and his bride will leave on their honeymoon in a private car.

were invited to the Hanson farm to attend the wedding anniversary of their fellow campers. Mr. Hanson had invited the merrymakers to his farm in the early evening and was taking them back home the round trip being completed except for a swift drive when the collision occurred. On the outgoing trip the hayrack contained forty persons but the bus was uncomfortably crowded and on the return trip an additional wagon was obtained. Eighty persons occupied the second vehicle which followed about a mile behind a farmer his wife and two children were recently killed in a similar accident at the same crossing. During the last eight years nearly two dozen persons have lost their lives at the same place.

SAYS HE IS NOT YET READY TO GIVE UP HIS SEAT IN CONGRESS

Oklahoma City Sept. 24—One of the principal features of the Russell County Teachers Institute, which closed its first session at Sulphur yesterday was a visit from the Hon. Henry D. Clayton, representative in Congress from this district. Mr. Clayton is touring the district now, accompanied by his wife. They are receiving much social attention in the various towns. Congressman Clayton delivered a fine educational address to the assembly of teachers and incidentally touched upon politics enough to pay his respects to Mr. Park and the Republican party and to announce that he had not yet decided to give up the office to which the people have been electing him for so many years and which he has filled so acceptably.

Mr. Clayton is chairman of the Judiciary Committee and will be in direct line for Attorney General in the next administration.

LYONS KILLED IN RUNAWAY

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 24—This morning while on his way to Port Payne the horse which Willy Lyons was driving became frightened in some manner and ran away throwing him into the ground and killing him outright.

The scene of the accident was at Old Beason Gap on Lookout Mountain which is a very steep gap. Mr. Lyons was a very old man and was well known in this place where he had lived all his life.

He leaves a wife and several children, all of whom are grown.

ROHDEIN COMES TO GREEK

Jamestown, N. Y., Sept. 24—Actor G. P. Rodgers who is trying to fit from coast to coast came to grief today at Red House where his automobile dashed into two barbed wire fences and was wrecked. Rodgers was not injured.

Rodgers had driven from Homestead and was forced to stop at Red House for repairs to a spark plug. In attempting to do so for a night to Jamestown the wind bore the machine to the fence, where both proper blades and shattering one of the wings. It is unlikely that Rodgers can get away from Red House to morrow.

MARRIAGE BY CAPTURE.

A Seminole Brave Must Win His Wife In a Fair Race.

The Seminole is the only Indian today who is as free as we are in the pr. Columbia Indians. If all the world but the last Indians in Florida were to be hunted out of existence, the latter would still be enough of a world for the Seminoles' wants and happiness. He is peaceful and honest and war is not worthy of the terrible things done to him in his brave days. By the white men when nearly everybody believed that the "only good Indian was a dead Indian."

Married by wife capture appears among the Seminoles. After the parents of the girl have consented to the marriage the young suitor sets a round wild turkey or a ham of venison at the door of the maiden's home. If this be accepted he lets the young brave, is sure of his wife provided he can capture her in a fair race at the July 4th dance or on some other festive occasion.

After capturing his intended preparations are then made for the wedding. The very simple ceremony involves the bridegroom proceeding in full attire to the girl's home there to remain through his life as a member of her family.

No the Seminoles still live out their happy life hunting and gathering in marriage cultivating their crops on the hammocks of the River Glades dwelling beneath the shade of the pine trees selling all furs and other skins to the whites and in return buying bright calicoes and other nice laundry. They have a trading post from Fort Myers. In Seminole now number about 100 and appear to be gradually increasing. —Living Church

Taking the Proverb: Three men, shiny surfaces, three small, breathlessly waiting boys.

"Then the word 'Go'!" And they did go—just as fast as their six legs had ever gone before. Tommy won the race and was beaten, in consequence, first choice of the hams.

"Well run, my boy!" the donor of the prize exclaimed. "The early bird catches the worm, you know. So now, Mr. Early Bird, which one will you choose?"

Tommy examined the hams very carefully. Then he prodded them softly with his fingers. In fact he seemed quite unable to decide the momentous question.

"Say, uncle," he asked at last, "would you mind just letting me know which one has the worm in it?"

UNUGHT GLORY.
During the Franco-Prussian war the house of a Prussian cavalryman was burned down and an act which led to the capture of a French battery, and just as often happens in life, the event for it was bestowed elsewhere.

One day during a hot conflict the stamp of cavalry in which Fritz, whom we will call the soldier in question, rode came to the top of a hill. On the crest of another hill and across a deep ravine the French had planted the gun.

Instantly Fritz's horse reared and galloped and started down the hill toward the gun on a swift run. Fritz tried to check the frightened animal, but found that it had taken the bit in its teeth and was wholly uncontrollable.

Down the hill, across the ravine and up the hill on the opposite side the horse went at a full gallop.

"The French battery has just gone by and shot and shelled, and Fritz realized that it was now depending how far it could run. The gun boomed and the field guns roared by his heel, but he was strong & he neither leant nor turned his head.

As the horse dashed up the hill to the very mouth of a ravine Fritz reached A to meet the heel of his spur to one situation and drew his saber for self defense.

To his surprise he saw the Frenchmen leave their battery and run like frightened sheep. But he understood why they were panic stricken when he looked back and saw his comrade climbing up the hill on their horses. For the time he had gained control of his horse, and dismounting he held one of the enemy's guns as the gun he had captured.

When the other cavalrymen came up he found out that they did not know he had run away, but thought it was all personal injury on his part and that he had acted the animal to make it run and ride to "the jaws of death" to capture the latter.

But Fritz explained that his horse had been forced upon him. Well and truly was a shrewd and sensible soldier so he accepted commands and contributions and said nothing.

He was promoted to a captain and all because of his runaway horse. If Fritz had not made that mistake the cavalry would never have had him.

Surf Riding As A Sport.

Since the recent craze in native sport of surf riding in the south seas, but the following description from London's "Globe" is most vivid. The locality referred to is Warwick beach in Honolulu.

The trees grow right down to the salty edges of things and one sits in their shade and looks seaward at a majestic surf that runs in on the beach to one's very feet. Half a mile out where the reef the white heading combers then suddenly break out of the plumb turquoise blue and come rolling in to the shore.

And suddenly out there where a big breaker lifts seaward rising like a sea god from out of the water of sponge and clanging white on the gold, toppling overhangin and down falling pyramids of a spray the dark head of a surf swells his way through the rising white. His black shoulder is thrust. His long his limbs—still are abruptly projected in one's vision. Who is but the moment! Fritz was only the wide distribution and a visible, you is now a man of full, round, not strapping, but solid in that wild movement not bound and entrapped and buried by those rough monsters—but standing there all calm and superb poised on the gold, immovable, his feet buried in the churning foam the salt smoke rising to his knees and all the rest of him to the fire and flashing such light and fire through the air that it makes him look like a statue of fire, the fire on which he stands. He is a Mercury, a brown Mercury. His head is winged and in this is the swift motion of the sea. In to the flame cut of the sea he has driven the bird of the sea and left in the sea's fire and left him to it cannot pull him from it. It is not from out of him and him alone. He is ripe, he is young, he is a fighter, he is bold, but only by some minute mark. The sea depths train who he is. And straight on toward the shore he goes on the winged birds and the white crest of the breakers. There is a wild but not a long and tumultuous sound as the breaker falls, falls and spends at your feet, and there at your feet steps calmly indoors a Kukla—Christian Science Monitor.

THE WORLD IS PLEASURE MAD

STOR RUSSELL DECLARIES

"God Misrepresented the Almighty the Masses Discern This. Hence the Small Church Attendance and small Collections—The Greeds Subdue Pleasure, Crowd Theaters and Ball Grounds—The True Cause—The Temperance.

STOR RUSSELL
Jersey City N.J., Sept. 24th—Rain or shine, hot or cold, large crowds attend Pastor Russell's preaching. His listeners represent all denominations.
He has a large heart full of love for fellow Christians
and all denominations, but does not claim that he has sympathy for the creeds which for long a time have blinded and entangled Christian people. Pastor Russell says he is laboring for Christ's cause when smushing the creed furies which have so long separated Christians from their Lord. He declares that the creeds are misinterpreted and consequently misrepresented in the home of friends. He surely is offering up as well as Christians to a fresh study of the Bible. His sermons though the public press are inclined to belittle millions who are not of his views.

Paster Russell's text for today was Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof. All in both II Tim. 3. He declared that his text relates to the present time that the world is going, amusement and pleasures around lies, bad games and aside resorts are absorbing the spirit of the spirit money and heart sick of the masses.

The difficulty is that the people here are in such a state of idolatry and evil as they are now awakening. We see the tendency toward revulsion of feeling. All the creeds of Christendom are repulsive. While each has some elements of truth taken as a whole they are all false representations of the Divine character and Plan.

Describing the Great Idol: Gradually the light of the new Day of earthly Jubilee is dawning. The dawning light shows us something of the errors of the past and the delusive impressions are disappearing. When we have reverence for our creeds now which have become abhorrent to all. The creeds are no longer believed, their superstitions errors fail to control us as seen hence shall attend us at the churches small collections, etc. The creeds are now sustained merely by the names of the words which our text declares are merely a manifestation of a form of godliness without the power. The wealthy and educated upholders of the creeds and their temples stand in the unbelief of those who are outside. Extravagance, who has a more use for the gifts this world can give?

The Great Idol is to have the good news of the true Gospel—to restore to them the Bible to show them clearly that it has been totally misrepresented by all the false creeds—that the true resurrection of the Divine character is absolutely grand. But also who shall tell the people these things. The millions of Christendom are in a deplorable condition. Who can question they must admit that they have not believed their creeds for years although outwardly they have been subject to these creed idols and have offered in case before them weaker than the people, not universally have no concern. At least the estimate is not exaggerated which claims that three-fourths of all the educated members of Christendom are higher off a hundred fold than the masses in the inspiration of the Bible.

How come these become leaders or instructors of the people in Europe to Divine things?

In June I spoke at the Boston Theatre, buying a capacity of thirty six hundred seats in filled and with two hundred men on the platform behind me while many stood and I was told that crowds were turned from the doors. The editor of a religious paper who was present came to me the following day and asked How do you account for the large crowds which attend your services while so many of our large churches are comparatively empty—some of our able speakers addressing twenty forty or fifty hearers?

I replied I believe the Prophet explains the situation "There shall be a famine in the land not a famine for bread nor a famine for water but a famine for the hearing of the Word of the Lord" Amos vll 10. The people are hungry. They have fully rejected the creeds of the past and thus live in things soul satisfying but not spiritual. They are hungry. I can tell them the Word of God and demonstrate to them that the Bible is the most wonderful book in the whole world and that the only difficulty has been that we have not understood it. It is our fault. We have read it through the colored spectacles of our old creeds. I stor I myself urged his hearers to continue in God and a free study of the Bible.

No Salary Attained.

They had met casually and had related to each other their adventures and misadventures since last they had been together. Patrick was working on a farm, but Michael was less fortunate. Only that day he had received his back money and had been told to go.

"And what'll we do now, Mike?" asked his sympathetic listener.

"Oh, I'll go back to me former job," answered Michael hopefully.

"Indie now! And what was that?" queried Pat.

A sigh broke from Michael's lips, and he shook his head sorrowfully.

"Looking for work, begorra, said he.

Hungarian Wedding Customs.

In Hungary wedding presents are only given to poor couples to help them to get their home together.
The girl friends of a well to do bride show attention by making cakes for the marriage feast, but of course there is none. There is no wedding cake for her but each guest receives a kind of sweet cake made of shortbread biscuits made in the form of a ring about ten inches in diameter.

Solubility of Gold.
Gold is one of the group of metals soluble only in that mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acids known as aqua regia. It has been found, however, that the presence of certain organic compounds renders gold soluble in hydrochloric acid.
Thus a mixture of this acid and chloroform is found to be a solvent for gold, or ordinary alcohol methyl alcohol and amyl alcohol are among the other substances which give to hydrochloric acid the power of dissolving gold. The solution takes place slowly in the cold and more quickly in the heat.

Independently Miserable.
A day or two ago, having joined the boat train at Dover harbor station, the writer found a fellow passenger resting a heavy head on worn-out looking hands. The weather was quite pleasant, but one can never judge the channel by the appearance of Dover beach, so the question was asked sympathetically, "Was the crossing very rough?"
"No," said the passenger, "this is a personal matter"—London Globe.
